Scattered Thoughts

by Rev. Kerry Nelson, Senior Pastor

I am probably doubling up on information that will appear elsewhere in this newsletter but that's OK. Good review. And well worth highlighting.

I often find myself wondering:

What do parents want and expect when they bring their children to Faith Lutheran Church? What do parents want and expect as they raise their children within the community of Faith Lutheran Church?

We have had a small group of people called the LEAD task force studying those questions this year. They have met twice each month, once separately and once with a LEAD consultant. They have surveyed the congregation. They have spoken with outside organizations. They want to learn how to do the best we can.

Along the way we also have to trust our own intuition and experience.

My sense is that parents want their children to grow up with a healthy sense of self-esteem, a good appreciation of their own gifts, and the ability to see beyond themselves to the needs of others. They want their children to be well grounded in the Christian faith. To know that God loves them and is with them always. To see God at work in the world. And they want their children to do the best they can with what they have to have the best life they can.

Parents are very willing, from the very first, to do all they can to help that happen. People want their children to be born safely and expertly. They take care of themselves and do all that the doctors asked of them during their pregnancy.

Many parents moved into their homes mindful of the future schools they hoped their children would attend.

Parents pay what used to be college tuition to get their children into excellent environments like Faith Day School. They willingly pay for

CCSC's Back to School Event

Each fall, the Christian Community Service Center (CCSC) distributes grade-appropriate school supplies and a voucher for a new school uniform and shoes to children from low-income families. In 2018, more than 6,000 children benefitted from the Back to School program.

Faith Lutheran Church will host the 2019 distribution of these school supplies on August 2 – 3. On these two days, more than 2,000 families will visit our church campus to receive the school supplies and vouchers for their children. Faith Lutheran will again offer our hospitality to those with significant financial need.

What can I do to sponsor a student?

It costs only $45.00 to provide each child with a comprehensive packet of school supplies and new clothing/shoes in line with their school's uniform requirements. Please consider donating funds to the Back to School program for one or more students.

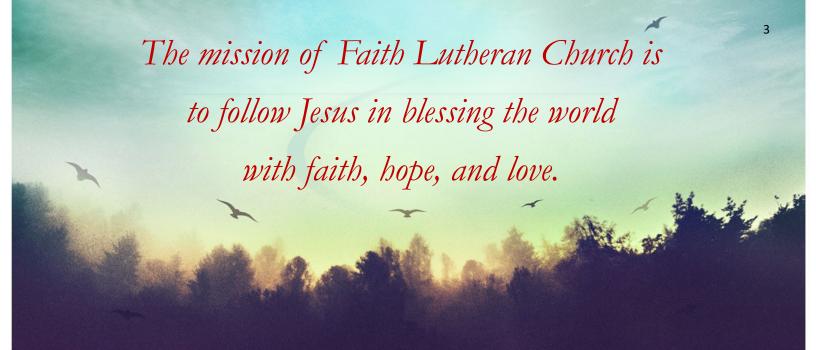

Donations of any amount can be contributed in one of two ways:

- → Donate online! The CCSC website is a convenient way to give, and your gift can be designated to Back To School: www.ccschouston.org
- → Donate through Faith Lutheran Church. Include your donation with your church offering. Designate "Back to School" on your check or offering envelope.

lessons, camps, experiences, and toys (that get increasingly expensive as kids get older).

Parents pay for child care and home security systems. They arrange play dates and birthday parties. They fret. They worry. They work very hard. They worry about whether or not they are doing enough even as they do more than they thought possible. All to give their children the best life possible.

Then we come to raising their children in the Christian faith. No parent ever says:

- I would like my child to grow up, move out of the house on their own, and never have any kind of committed relationship with a congregation for the rest of their lives (other than perhaps getting married, baptizing a baby, or a funeral).
- I would like my child to be uncertain about what they believe and largely ignorant about the Bible and its stories.
- I would like my child to prioritize everything else in their lives above participation in Christian community.

No one says that. No one believes that. No one wants that. And yet many parents struggle with knowing what to do, especially if they didn't receive the best modeling from our own parents.

The easy thing to do is to bring children to worship and drop them off for Learning Group. That is important. But it isn't nearly enough and it has not been enough for a long, long time. For the faith to truly become part of peoples' lives, it needs to become part of their homes.

We want Faith to be helpful to parents. And our best thinking has brought us to a renewed commitment to some family practices that are very simple...if not easy. We call these practices "Faith5" and we are going to continue to teach and model them in as many ways as possible.

Right now, after all the gatherings of the LEAD team, the thing that most stands out is the power of encouraging faith-based conversations at home. This is Faith5 - Share, Read, Talk, Pray, Bless - daily, with those we love.

We are committed to revisiting and teaching those disciplines in worship every fifth Sunday of the month. We're going beyond that this summer by incorporating Faith5 into our combined summer adult learning group time.

As simple as it seems, this is precisely what we need. No matter how old we are. Come and be part of the revolution!

Faith Camp Worship Sunday, July 7 @ 8:30 and 10:50 AM

Sorrowful, Yet Always Rejoicing

by Rev. Junfeng Tan, Associate Pastor

More than 50 masterworks of the Dutch artist Vincent Van Gogh were on display at the Museum of Fine Arts in Houston from March 10 through June 27. Much has been said about his genius, his contribution to modern arts, his mental illness, the self-inflicted mutilation of his ear, and finally his tragic death at the age of 37. Few people know that Van Gogh had a deeply religious upbringing. His father was a pastor in the Dutch Reformed Church and taught Van Gogh and his siblings Bible and the Christian way of life. After his unsuccessful career as an art dealer and before committing himself to becoming an artist, Van Gogh studied in theological training school and then worked as a sincere and fervent evangelist in the Belgian mining district, preaching the gospel and serving the poor workers. Throughout his lifetime, he had wondered about the mysteries of God and life. His artworks and his many letters reveal his spiritual yearning and quest for meaning of life.

As an artist, Van Gogh tried to find God's presence in the ordinary and the mundane. He wrote to his brother Theo, "When one is in a somber mood, how good it is to walk on the barren beach and look at the grayish-green sea with the long white streaks of the waves. But if one feels the need of something grand, something infinite, something that makes one feel aware of God, one need not go far to find it. I think I see something deeper, more infinite, more eternal than the ocean in the expression of the eyes of a little baby when it wakes in the morning, and coos and laughs because it sees the sun shining on its cradle. If there is a 'ray from on high,' perhaps one can find it there." In another letter, he wrote again about the cradle, "you see, a cradle is not like anything else—there is no fooling with it—And just listen, between us—without preaching a sermon, it may be true there is no God here, but there must be one not far off, and at such a moment one feels his presence. Which is the same as saying, I readily give this sincere profession of faith: I believe in God, and that it is his will that man does not live alone, but with a wife and a child, when everything is normal." It appears that the nativity story had made a lasting impression on his mind and heart.

Van Gogh often chose ordinary people—farmers, workers, weavers, servants, elders—as his subjects. He considered "The Potato Eaters" as one of his best paintings. He said, "I have tried to emphasize that these people, who by the light of their little lamp are eating their potatoes, who with the same hands that are reaching into the dish have tilled the earth, and so this painting speaks of manual labor and thus of having honestly earned their food. I wanted to make people think of a whole different manner of living from the way we civilized people live. I also wouldn't care if not everyone would find it beautiful or good." Like Jesus, Van Gogh felt great affinity with and affection for the lowly, the poor, and the suffering.

For Van Gogh, love and God are inseparable. He said: "Everything that is truly good and beautiful, of an inner, moral, spiritual, and sublime beauty, in human beings, I think that that comes from God. But I always think that the best way of knowing God is to love many things. Love that friend, that person, that thing, whatever you like, you will be on the right path of knowing more thoroughly afterwards; that is what I say to myself. But you have to love with a high, with a serious and intimate sympathy, with a will, with intelligence; and you must always seek to know more thoroughly, better, and more. That is what leads to God; that leads to unshakeable faith." His passion for life, for art, his yearning for love is a reflection of his spiritual pursuit.

Van Gogh was a man acquainted with sorrow and hardships. His most brilliant works were created during the last several years of his life, during which period he was afflicted with mental illness—depression, nervous breakdown, feverish hallucinations, epileptic seizures, and suicidal thoughts. How could he, often in the midst of anguish and darkness and self-doubt, paint many masterpieces that are filled with dazzling light and bright colors, joy and hope, beauty and serenity? How did he ascend artistic and creative height with great burdens in his mind and handicaps in his body? It is a puzzle that cannot be solved with easy answers. One clue to the puzzle can be found in his favorite bible verse, "Sorrowful, yet always rejoicing" (2 Corinthians 6:10). He said, "The artist's life is one long Calvary to go through! And that's perhaps what makes us live. Passion enlivens us." I wonder if he also found hope, inspiration, and inner strength in the story of resurrection and life everlasting. Commenting on Van Gogh's famous painting of The Sower, Carol Berry, the author of Vincent Van Gogh: His Spiritual Vision in Life and Art said, "A sower is scattering his seeds on freshly ploughed soil while at the same time the ripe wheat ready for harvest stands tall in the background. The whole cycle of life, the sorrowful yet always rejoicing of birth, death, and rebirth under the golden orb of the sun offers a vision of comfort." What is the significance of the sun in Van Gogh's painting? Carol Berry said, "the image of the sun was the symbol of the divine, the source that empowers creation. Vincent painted the brilliant suns to express that beyond everyday reality there exists a font of inexhaustible love and light—a light that permeates all the shadows and dark corners of life. The inner beauty, the inner light, the capacity to love inherent in all people came from the same source."

Everyone of us may have to go through dark valleys of sorrow, brokenness, and anguish. However, let us not forget that "The light shines in the darkness, and the darkness did not overcome it" (John 1:5).

Dear Church by Lenny Duncan

by Dr. Clayton Faulkner, Director of Worship, Music, and Technology

I expect many of you to be shocked at the end of this.

Lenny Duncan could be considered controversial. From his own bio: "Lenny spent most of his teens homeless after leaving home at age 13. He has spent time in all 48 contiguous states, sleeping by the side of the highway or in penthouses along the way. He has been a prisoner of war in the so-called war on drugs. After systemic oppression or drugs didn't kill him, Lenny found himself in a strange place: the church. Lenny has been everything from high school drop out, drug dealer, sex worker, street corner poet, hitchhiker, dharma bum, small town drifter, seminarian, political activists, father, pastor, lover, public theologian, and writer. Now he parties dead sober and thrives in NYC."

You may remember that in the summer of 2017 we screened a documentary film called, "Do Black Churches Matter in the ELCA." That film is the result of Lenny's work as well. In a passionate effort to address racism in the church, he has written, "Dear Church: A Love Letter from a Black Preacher to the Whitest Denomination in the U.S." Lenny is coming to Houston on July 16 to support the release of his book.

I will be at the book tour, and I encourage you to be as well. A prophetic voice will be speaking. It will be uncomfortable. It will create an opportunity for vulnerability. Buy the book and read it, especially if you are white.

Lenny claims to be the unlikeliest of pastors. Should he be unlikely? Should we be shocked that a once homeless, former sex worker, ex-convict is now a pastor? If you believe in God's radical and unrestricted grace, you shouldn't be shocked.

LEAD Team Update

by John Vickery, Director of Youth and Family Ministry

The summer is upon us, which means it is also time for the LEAD Team to kick off its Summer Learning Program. We invite you to FAITH5 Summer each Sunday morning through July and August, during the learning time (9:45 AM) in the Fellowship Hall. We will be structuring our time together around the practice of FAITH5 to help teach the process, and how it can be also used in the home with families of any age.

We believe, through our listening, that one of the things our congregation is looking for is ways to build relationships with their families and others. FAITH5 is a wonderful way to do this because it provides a framework to allow each person to share about their life, learn about others' lives, come together for a time of learning together, then to bless one another. I hope that you would consider joining us!

Rebecca Ruth Circle

The Rebecca Ruth Circle will meet on Thursday, July 11 at 10:00 AM in the Conference Room.

We would love for you to join us for Bible study. Come hungry! Bring your sack lunch. Desserts and drinks will be provided. Socializing with the group is so joyful.

All are welcome!!

Prayer Corner - God's Servant for Your Good by Peggy Porter

Read Romans 13:1-7 and Psalm 72

"For he is God's servant for your good. But if you do wrong, be afraid, for he does not bear the sword in vain." (Romans 13:4)

Government is God's gift for our good. God establishes nations and governments for the preservation of order and the hindrance of evil. Earthly governments are not perfect, and they are prone to abuse. But if there were no government, there would be chaos and unbridled wickedness, every sinner for themselves.

Obedience to the government is a Fourth Commandment issue: "Honor your father and your mother" (Exodus 20:12). We recall from the catechism that this means honoring, serving, obeying, loving, and even cherishing, not only our parents, but all earthly authorities as well. For in so honoring those who govern us, we honor God.

Jesus honored Mary and Joseph. He also rendered unto Caesar. He paid his taxes. He submitted to the authority of Herod and to Pontius Pilate. He even submitted to execution on the cross. This he did for us, fulfilling the commandment and dying for our sin. Now he is risen and reigns over all. We submit to earthly government, knowing we are citizens of heaven.

Pray: Heavenly Father, preserve our nation and our leaders, for Jesus' sake. Amen.

God's Work, Our Hands

by John Vickery, Director of Youth and Family Ministry

This past month 11 high school students and four adults took part in our mission trip to Puerto Rico. What a week that was! The projects that were organized for us were amazing! During our time there we split into three different work crews. Each of the crews were comprised of students and adults from each of the four different churches that were there. Our projects ranged from clearing land and planting an urban garden, to spending time with kids running a day camp similar to Faith Camp. Each day the stories that the kids would bring back to share at our evening church group time were astounding. The relationships that they were able to build with the youth from the other churches in such a short period of time is amazing to me. Many of them even shared phone numbers and are keeping in touch even after the trip. I know that I am doing the same with the other youth directors that were there too!

The members of the community that we worked with were perhaps my favorite part of the trip. Getting the opportunity to work side by side with a local, learning their story while getting your hands dirty is something that I always love doing. There is something about working towards the same goal that is inspiring, and creates a natural openness to learn about one another. This is also one of the observations that was brought to me by several of the youth throughout the trip, so it was really cool for them to start recognizing that concept as well.

Each one of the nights we had an evening activity planned for us. One day we went to the beach, another we attended a local church service, we got lessons in salsa dancing, and we had a cookout with the community members that we had been working with throughout the week. It was really fun to see how on Monday at the beach day our kids stuck to themselves, and didn't really interact with the rest of the group. But, then Tuesday came, and everyone was so interspersed.

The projects that were completed, and the relationships that were built I believe are God's work that our hands carry out. Also, it is important to remember that many of the projects that we worked on are ongoing through the summer and beyond. We were only a small piece of a larger puzzle of the work in Puerto Rico. The work we did paved the way for those who came after us. That realization is just as impactful.

The kids and adults will be sharing their experiences with the congregation on July 28 during worship and during the learning hour. Please plan to join us to hear their reflections, stories, and joys from their week of service.
